

Browzine No Longer Available at NU

After careful consideration, Northwestern University Libraries have decided to cancel the subscription to Browzine, a journal aggregation tool. The libraries were looking for cost savings in the resources budget for the next fiscal year and Browzine was not a good fit, as the service did not accurately reflect the full breadth of our extensive journal collection. Low usage compared to other resources also factored in to the cancellation decision.

Were you a user of Browzine? It's possible to access your saved content by logging into your individual account using the following link: <https://browzine.com/libraries/14>. You will not be able to click through to any resources which require NU authentication, but your saved lists and shelves should still be available.

For the most comprehensive listing of journals subscribed by all NU libraries, use Journal Search.

Printed: Friday, March 6, 2020 11:56 PM

Source: <https://galter.northwestern.edu/news/browzine-no-longer-available-at-nu.pdf>