Is the full-text of this journal article available online?
The quickest way to answer this is to use the Search box in the main website navigation. Search by journal title and check the years a journal is available.

Another option is to click on the purple "Find It @ NM/Galter" links activated in most library-licensed databases, to determine if the library has electronic subscriptions or print holdings. Anything we don't have can be requested through interlibrary loan.

For more information see our E-Journal FAQs.

How do I determine whether Galter Library owns a book or journal?

Use the library catalog to find out whether we own a book, journal, or multimedia resource. The library catalog searches all of the Northwestern University libraries including affiliated hospital libraries.

Can I access electronic resources from off-campus?

To access electronic journals and books when off-campus, you must be signed in to the library website. This easy procedure authenticates you as a Galter Library affiliate and allows us to provide electronic licensed content to you at an off-campus location. Once you have registered and signed in, use the Galter Library website as normal - in other words, go to Find Resources and search for your journal.

How can I learn to use electronic databases and other library resources?

Galter Library offers a variety of educational workshops each month, from basic MEDLINE searching to bibliographic citation organization using EndNote. To view a list of available workshops and upcoming schedule, see the Upcoming Classes list on the home page. If you can't attend one of our scheduled classes, you can request a class for you or your group at a mutually convenient time. For self-directed learning, take a look at our Guides and Tutorials.

How do I order an article or book that the library does not have?

To request an article or book not owned by Galter Library you must fill out an Interlibrary Loan (ILL) request form: Order an Article or Book. In general interlibrary loan requests for articles are filled in about 3 business days while requests for print volumes are filled in about 1-2 weeks. If you need a quicker turnaround you may want to contact one of the other health sciences libraries in Chicago.

There is currently no charge for interlibrary loan requests to FSM faculty, staff, students, and residents.
